Four years ago, we observed that “the election of 2016 represents the true contemporary nature of capitalism.” The proletariat’s real political role is to directly contest for power, if necessary through the ballot, alongside the working class, outside the realm of personal politics and electoralism. The Communist Party

Class Struggles Win, Elections Don’t

WHAT DISTINGUISHES OUR PARTY – The line running from Marx to Lenin to the International Communist Party. The struggle against capitalism, imperialism, and its global and local manifestations is the task of every Communist and the Communist Party. The Communist Party, in its entirety, is dedicated to the working class, outside the realm of personal politics and electoralism. The Communist Party newspaper of the International Communist Party

November 2020

Issue 26  | 25¢ 25p 0.50€

War in Armenia and Azerbaijan

For the fourth time since the last conflict, Armenians are once again at war with each other over the territory known as Nagorno-Karabakh near the Republic of Azerbaijan. Considering the War in Afghanistan, Turkey and Karabakh, the region, in which the conflict is resolved, has been a part of the world’s attentions. As the war continues, one can see the world’s attention concentrated on the region.

For many, the problem of this region stems from the existence of an Armenian state in the region. This is not the case. The region has been under the control of Azerbaijan and the Armenian state has been a creation of the Soviet Union.

The war is not about the right to self-determination. It is about the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the right of the people of the region to self-determination.

The war is about the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the right of the people of the region to self-determination.

For the fourth time since the last conflict, Armenians are once again at war with each other over the territory known as Nagorno-Karabakh near the Republic of Azerbaijan. Considering the War in Afghanistan, Turkey and Karabakh, the region, in which the conflict is resolved, has been a part of the world’s attentions. As the war continues, one can see the world’s attention concentrated on the region.

For many, the problem of this region stems from the existence of an Armenian state in the region. This is not the case. The region has been under the control of Azerbaijan and the Armenian state has been a creation of the Soviet Union.

The war is not about the right to self-determination. It is about the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the right of the people of the region to self-determination.

The war is about the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the occupation of a region by an aggressive and expansionist state. It is about the refusal of the international community to recognize the right of the people of the region to self-determination.
In Belarus: Behind the Scenes a Strong Working Class keeps on Pushing Protests have been held in Belarus since the election of a strongly right-wing President Alexander Lukashenko, who has led the country for 26 years. His legitimacy is questioned by a large segment of the population, especially young people who make up the majority of the recent demonstrations. This protest movement has been largely organized by the Belarusian opposition and has been met with a strong repression by the authorities. The government has used violence and arrests to try to suppress the protests, but the movement has continued to grow.

In Belarus, the government has been accused of using excessive force against protesters, including arrests and beatings. The opposition has called for international support and condemnation of the government's actions. The protests have been driven by a desire for change and a call for free and fair elections. The Belarusian working class has played a significant role in the protests, with workers from various industries joining in demonstrations.

The Belarusian working class has a long history of activism and solidarity. The International Communist Party (ICP) has a long-standing tradition of support for workers' struggles, and we continue to support the Belarusian working class in their fight for freedom and democracy.

Against Political Fronts And Reformist Illusions

A leaflet distributed at strikes in Rotterdam and by the ICP, Tuesday April 27, 2020

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The ICP is the only political force that understands the needs of the working class and will work to build a united front of the working class and the oppressed working people of the world.

Against Political Fronts And Reformist Illusions

A leaflet distributed at strikes in Rotterdam and by the ICP, Tuesday April 27, 2020

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The ICP is the only political force that understands the needs of the working class and will work to build a united front of the working class and the oppressed working people of the world.

Against Political Fronts And Reformist Illusions

A leaflet distributed at strikes in Rotterdam and by the ICP, Tuesday April 27, 2020

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The ICP is the only political force that understands the needs of the working class and will work to build a united front of the working class and the oppressed working people of the world.

Against Political Fronts And Reformist Illusions

A leaflet distributed at strikes in Rotterdam and by the ICP, Tuesday April 27, 2020

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The ICP is the only political force that understands the needs of the working class and will work to build a united front of the working class and the oppressed working people of the world.

Against Political Fronts And Reformist Illusions

A leaflet distributed at strikes in Rotterdam and by the ICP, Tuesday April 27, 2020

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The global economic crisis of capitalism, which has been going on for the past decade, has been further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic and will lead to a serious erosion of the living standards of the working class.

The ICP is the only political force that understands the needs of the working class and will work to build a united front of the working class and the oppressed working people of the world.