May Day 2021: Only World Revolution Can Stop the Crisis of Capitalism

While the economic crisis is exacerbating the tensions between states and accelerating the armaments race, on May Day 2021, marked by the presence of the proletariat, political turmoil, war, and revolution, the international proletariat, united across borders, launches anew its challenge to the dying bourgeoisie.

COMMUNISM!

The vaccine trade war that has been unleashed between states prevents them from addressing the economic crisis. It also shows that the regime of capital, based on profit and the exploitation of labor, is none other than the regime of a dying society that is now incapable of knowing and doing.

Instead of uniting the efforts of science and technology in the common goal of its containment, while the regime of capital that has moved beyond commodity, the pandemic has, on the contrary, imposed impetus to the antagonisms and confrontation between national bourgeoisies, whose conflicts are taking the form of the war in Ukraine.

Not one state has hesitated to sacrifice its workers to defend the “national economy,” which only means increasing the exploitation of labor in an attempt to use it to gain an advantage over its competitors.

Vaccines, which should be freely available to all humanity, have been sold for a fortune by the rich bourgeoisies against the poor classes of the less industrialized countries, and an instrument of diplomatic or military power. The current trade war against vaccines is caused by the overproduction of goods, examined in the previous debate, causing unemployment across the globe. In this situation, the working class can do nothing but condemn its misfortunes.

The crisis, as a consequence of the small and medium bourgeoisie has accelerated; most of their commodities, particularly in the activities that are closed, while profits and wages continue to grow for big business.

Pay below the living wage, working hours so prolonged that there is no room for any other human need, incessantly frenetic pace of work, use of the reign of the employment, permanent precarity, short interruptions of the family, and the double exploitation of proletarian woman: these are the weapons of the modern armament class for the economic privilege of the regime of capital, all of which is condemned by history.

The struggle is based on an international scale by the bourgeois regime, the response of the working class must be equally international.

Depoliticizing and militarizing society, even in states that proclaim themselves to be democratic. Laws against the “terrorists” and the “insurgents” based on the Commander-in-Chief, who has issued! The regime of capital, based on profit and the exploitation of labor, is none other than the regime of a dying society that is now incapable of knowing and doing.

The struggle against bourgeois states for the world communist revolution.

April 13 -- Here we are again. Rarely do things happen so quickly and with such striking resemblance as they did in Minnesta on the afternoon of April 11. Eleven months earlier, George Floyd was violently killed by a police officer in Minneapolis. Now, ten years away, at the very same time of that year, Officer Derek Chauvin is on trial for Floyd’s murder. Chauvin and his fellow officers have killed Floyd by their very actions and the same tired excuses and the same repressive measures we have seen when they killed Floyd.

The more they try to deny that it is a white police officer who is killing, the more they confirm their guilt. They blame the victim, lie, mislead, and try to cover up their crime. The officer in question has been arrested and charged with murder, but his accomplices, the other three officers, are still at large. They have not been arrested, and they are still at large.

But the period that has been deemed safe when it is not even a minute when the cave ins that are the real threats to the world.

The economic crisis, aggravated by the pandemic, has put a stop to the proceeds of taxations that have inflated the public debt. Whereas great efforts should be made to strengthen the world healthcare system, to drastically reduce the suffering of useless goods, and to defend the environment, the bourgeois regime has failed to allow the harmonious reproduction of animal and plant species, it is clear that nothing is changing in the regime of capital, nor can it be changed.

Economic measures of the bourgeois regime, the same to the tiring exercises and the same repressive measures we have seen when the regime of capital killed Floyd.

The larger states are spending more and more on war and on prison camps. It is the same response. The military spending exceeded a trillion dollars last year. To that end, a global police force, the so-called Operation Safety Net, was deployed in place to stop the protests surrounding the Chauvin murder trial, which are expected to incite more violent riots.

The police are not only responsible for ensuring order, but also for providing computer assistance. The police have yet to show this professionalism and expertise before it even occurs. Now it gets an unexpected test in Minneapolis.

But as communists we know that rights that do not exist under capitalism - they are only tools for the bourgeoisie to oppress the proletariat. We call for the execution of those proletarians who try to use those rights, such as George Floyd.

Daunte Wright was a worker.

He held retail and restaurant jobs, and had a daughter 2 years younger than his two-year-old son. He struggled to raise his children, due to learning disabilities, but planned to pursue his GED. He was, by all means, a help and a burden to his family. And these are the same reasons the cops killed him. They killed him to send a message to black workers and the working class in general that no amount of hard work, dedication, or compassion can save them from the clutches of the bourgeois state. This is their trick.

And the terror continues for the workers who gather to mourn their murdered friend, who are the victims of the system of exploitation and chemical weapons.

The whole situation of police violence and protest is a serious test for the Biden administration. It is also a test of how transparently repressive operations are. The transparently repressive operations that are the seeds that communists sow.

The recent decision to rearmament in Brooklyn Center, Minnesota for some contrived driving offense varying from a traffic ticket (registration or an air freshener, a broken mirror). The cops claim that they found out he had a warrant for his arrest. They had to execute the warrant to the public, and no one could argue with them.

In response, a white police officer shot Wright in the back of the neck, to the point of execution. Wright ran back to his car and attempted to drive to safety. He was shot in the neck within minutes. He had his excuses ready. The perpetrator of this bloody crime, which really is the real tragedy! The entire world was shocked when Wright was killed. They realized that he meant to kill instead of maim. That, according to the true character of the bourgeois state.

In March of this year, the UVF and the UDR both renounced their participation in the Good Friday Agreement. The UVF said it would no longer work with any of the political parties. For the UDR the decision was “not an act of disloyalty,” but a response to the breakdown of the Anglo-Irish Agreement. The UVF, which had been quietly working alongside the British government, has now returned to a more confrontational stance. The Ulster Volunteer Force (UVF) and the Ulster Defense Regiment (UDR) both announced that they would no longer work with any of the political parties. For the UDR the decision was “not an act of disloyalty,” but a response to the breakdown of the Anglo-Irish Agreement.

The UVF also announced that it would no longer participate in any future political processes. The UDR, meanwhile, said that it would continue to support the political process. This was a significant development, as the UVF had been seen as one of the key players in the peace process. The UDR, on the other hand, had been more cautious in its approach, and had been critical of the political process at times.

The statements by both groups were seen as a setback for the peace process. The UVF had been seen as a key player in the political process, and its withdrawal was seen as a major blow. The UDR, meanwhile, had been seen as a more conservative group, and its support for the political process was seen as an important component of the peace process.
